Notes: All dates were national Saturday SAT administrations, except for dates noted with a "w", which were Wednesdays. These dates were compiled from various sources, including the bulletin archives of Wellesley College, Haverford College, and the University of California at Berkeley. Months with "♦" symbols were special September administrations done at participating colleges, generally during the third week of September. The months with "+" symbols were October administrations, held only in California and Texas initially, increasing to 12 states by 1994, and given nationally thereafter. The months with "*" were SAT administrations in conjunction with the first Scholarship (Achievement) tests. Although these tests were administered nationally, they were not available to be taken separately for purposes of admission. I haven't attempted to include Sunday or special administrations. There has to be some limit to my craziness.
